Hope Seniors to Make Final Stand in Benton Game at 7:30

Chance at State Football Crown Hinges on Result

Bobcats, Realizing Importance of Game, Reported On Edge

KICKOFF SET FOR 7:30

Benton to Bring Great Punter Here in Fullback J. P. Moore

Eleven Hope High School football players—nine of them in the starting lineup—will end their prep careers before home folks here Thursday night in the all-important conference contest with Benton High School.

Making their final stand will be Captain Joe Eason, Sub Captain Bobby Eilen, Norman Green, Major Simpson, Charles Quimby, Bill Tom Bundy, West Calhoun, Charles Ray Baker, Day Calhoun, John Beckworth and Phil Eith.

A Fine Season

The most successful season in the history of the local school is drawing to a close. Out of 10 games the Bobcats have won nine. The record shows the Bobcats have piled up a total of 235 points to the opposition's 64.

That's slightly better than 24 points per game to the opposition's six points. Hope has scored in every contest. Most points made against the Bobcats were 18 by the pass-fancy Jonesboro squad.

There has been but one touchdown this season through the Hope line—and that was against the third-stringers in the Walnut Ridge game in which Coach Foy Hammans used 26 players.

Moore Is Outstanding

The pearl-gray and maroon-clad Benton Panthers will pit an outstanding football star against the Bobcats here Thursday night in Full-back J. P. Moore, line ball carrier and reported to be the greatest high school punter in Arkansas.

His punting has shored up opponents back all season long. In the Benton-North Little Rock game he booted one for 60 yards which struck the turf and bounded another 20 yards for a measurement of 80 yards.

Moore not only is a great kicker, but has shouldered the brunt of the Panther offensive attack. He weighs 180 pounds and is a dash man on the Benton track team. Stopping Moore will be one of the big problems for the Bobcats.

Kickoff at 7:30

The game begins half an hour earlier than previous contests. The kickoff being set for 7:30 p.m. Gates at the stadium will open earlier. All season football tickets will be good.

Much will be at stake in the Benton game. For 11 seniors of the Hope team the contest offers its sentimental side—the last stand at home.

For the Bobcat squad as a whole, a victory will clear the path for a chance at the state high school football championship.

The Bobcats realize the importance of a victory and tension is reported to be high among the squad.

A big crowd is expected.

The kickoff is at 7:30.

Washington Visit Here

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Washburn of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., arrived in Hope Wednesday night for a visit of several days with their son, Alex. H. Washburn, publisher of The Star.

They drove through, visiting younger sons at Sunbury and Pittsburgh, Pa., and relatives in Quincy, Ill. They will be here through Thanksgiving at Hotel Barlow.

Death Penalty Is Given Jack Russell

Oklahoma Outlaw Convicted of Slaying Flour
Salesman

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Jack Russell won 15 cents Wednesday but lost a court battle for his life.

The Oklahoma desperado was convicted of kidnapping and killing William Scott Hamilton, an Arkansas City, Kan., flour salesman, by a jury which fixed his penalty at death in the electric chair.

He received the verdict of the seven women and five men in silence but after he left the federal court room he protested: "was never a killer."

Quickly he recalled, with an attempt at jest, that he had won a nickel each from three deputy marshals with whom he had wagered that he would get the chair.

Before the 39-year-old prisoner was whisked to jail, Judge Charles E. Woodward set November 29 for hearing motions for a new trial. The jurist said that, if they were denied, he would impose sentence on that date.

It was the first time in the history of Chicago that women jurors decreed death. The seven women among the first seated in an important case since a state law authorizing members of their sex to serve on juries became effective on July 1, and the five men deliberated through the night.

Foreman William Fitzgerald reported that on the first ballot on punishment one man and five women voted against the supreme penalty.

On the eighth poll the jurors reached a unanimous decision.

Russell relied chiefly on his own witness stand story in his trial under the Lindbergh law. He maintained he escaped from the Oklahoma state prison at McAlester because he was obsessed by the desire to come to Chicago to learn whether his fears that he had lost his wife's love were justified.

He claimed that Hamilton was shot to death accidentally while he struggled with him for possession of a revolver in Hamilton's car, parked on a country lane near Binkwood, Ill., last July.

Russell's wife, Mary testified for the defense. While he was being taken to a cell Wednesday he told guards: "Tell Mary I said thanks."

The defendant—his real name is Oliver Lawrence Dressler—attracted nation wide attention last summer during his headlong flight.

25 States Over U.S. Observe Thursday As Thanksgiving

Join in Roosevelt's Ho-
That World Soon

PLEA IN PULPI

Second Thanksgiving Wi-
Follow Week From This Thursday

By the Associated Press
The families of 25 states sat down Thursday at the "first table" of the nation's dual Thanksgiving, joining in President Roosevelt's expressed hope that the world soon would be at peace.

The "second table" will not be served until next Thursday in states whose governors declined to follow the president's decision to advance the holiday one week.

Despite the confusion over the date there was unanimity in pulpits and in quiet households in echoing Roosevelt's proclamation:

"Let us give thanks to the Ruler of the Universe for the hope that lives within us of the coming day when peace and the productive activities of peace shall reign on every continent."

By the Associated Press

Thursday is Thanksgiving in half the country. The rest of the nation will wait a week. It lives in states whose governors did not fall in line with President Roosevelt's decision to change the traditional holiday calendar and proclaim a week-ahead-of-time Thanksgiving.

In this nation-wide division there are three neutrals, Colorado, Mississippi and Texas.

In all, 25 states are celebrating Thanksgiving Thursday and, including the three which are observing both dates, 26 will celebrate next week.

Those which stayed by the president, including the three, are: California, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming.

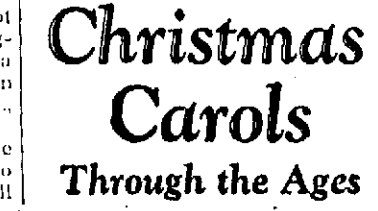

Those sticking to the last Thursday in November are:

Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont and Wisconsin.

President Roosevelt set the holiday a week ahead in an effort to make Christmas business reach a larger total.

The largest cotton crop in 13 years, estimated at between 135,000 and 150,000 bales, is being gathered in the lower Rio Grande valley of Texas.

Colonel Williams, Aviator, to Address Hope Civic Clubs

New York-to-Rome Flyer Will Make Good-Will Visit to This City December 1—Will Answer Various Questions About Aviation

Colonel Roger Q. Williams, rated as one of the five leading flyers of the United States, will address the members of the Hope Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis clubs at the Barlow Hotel, Friday, December 1, at noon luncheon.

Colonel Williams attained world fame ten years ago by his flight from New York to Rome. He also made the first pioneering nonstop flight to Bermuda and back, studying navigation problems. His log is exceptional in aviation, showing nearly 14,000 hours in the air, 63,000 passengers carried, 1,400,000 miles flown and 700 students taught to fly.

At present Colonel Williams is engaged on a unique educational program, sponsored by the Readers' Digest, whose plane he is flying.

That publication believes that Americans today are acutely interested in aviation, but that their interest is impeded because they cannot make direct, first hand contact with veterans of the industry.

Therefore, it has decided to put a plane and a specially experienced pilot at the disposal of business and civic clubs. He will come to Hope to talk to these various groups, and endeavour to answer whatever questions they may ask.

Colonel Williams flies a Fairchild four-passenger plane and will be glad to take for their first flights any members of his audience who have never been in the air.

LIBERTY, Mo.—(AP)—J. C. Penney, a native Missourian who heads a merchandising chain, told William Jewell College students Wednesday that in the days when he did the hiring he investigated the family life of prospective employees.

Penney, who entered the dry goods business 37 years ago, said employer-employee relationships had undergone a vast change in the last few years.

Mystery Woman In Killing Sought

Police Are Looking for Woman Known As
"Alice"

DALLAS, Texas.—Police Wednesday night sought another "mystery woman" in the gun slaying of Brooks Coffman, 35, attorney, on a Dallas street by a pretty blonde stenographer.

Mrs. Florenz Allen, who had been walking with Coffman a few minutes before Miss Corinne Maddox, 26, stepped from a door, way and opened fire on the attorney Monday, told officers that a second woman whom she knew only as Alice also was walking with Coffman.

Mrs. Allen, who gave an eye witness account of the shooting to the grand jury Tuesday, said she had walked ahead of Coffman and the other woman as they started to enter the building.

The mystery woman was believed to have been the blonde who knelt over Coffman's body as he lay in the street and pleaded with photographer: "Don't take his picture for my sake." She disappeared in the crowd when police arrived.

Officers hoped to question the woman on any possible motive Miss Maddox, self-proclaimed daughter of a prominent Dallas banker, had for slaying Coffman in addition to the hatred and fear that she claimed inspired the shooting.

Coffman, who had kept company with Miss Maddox for several months, stabbed her in the back with an ice-pick May 20 when she refused to go to California with him to "start life over." Miss Maddox revealed to police Wednesday that she had known Coffman for six years and knew that he was married.

Civilization May Sneak Through Again

During the course of the last war, writers and orators re-discovered a word that was not only filled with lurid implications but bounced pleasantly along the tongue. The word was "Armageddon," and it came to be an essential part of the vocabularies of alarmists and pessimists.

Never before 1914 had a war been staged on so widespread a scale. Conflicts before had always been conducted along conventional lines—between two nations or two factions within a nation over some such orthodox matter as boundaries, colonies, freedom of the seas or the prestige of a ruler. Never before had half the world gone to bat for democracy and the other half against it.

Here then was Armageddon. It was not only God's great battle of good against the forces of evil, but it was the war that could eliminate either all future wars or civilization itself. Here was the master war of them all, with new-fangled flying machines that could wipe out cities as men swat flies and guns that could fire shells into towns 60 miles away. Civilization could not possibly survive that mighty onslaught.

For 21 years after the 1918 Armistice, Armageddon was forgotten by all but classical scholars. Civilization, through some inexplicable miracle, had not been wiped out. And wars had not been ended. The euphonistic word was packed away in mothballs along with such curios as A. E. F. uniforms and buttons.

Then came 1939. Bustles came back and so did Armageddon. Here it was again—the great decisive battle of all time. This was the war that would grind the earth into a mass of lifeless pulp. Columnists built their sermons around the resuscitated word. On one day, two writers climaxed their essays with nearly identical sentences, both involving "Armageddon" and another columnist used the word so often that it began to sound like the title of a popular song.

During the past two months, speakers and writers have gradually been laying off. Either they began to tire of the word or they realized that maybe this wasn't quite Judgement Day. Perhaps they decided civilization, having managed to squeeze through the last assault, might get through this one. If the war abroad is ever unleashed in all its fury, folks all over the world will probably have a pretty rough time of it. Those who aren't directly in the line of fire are going to feel the repercussions in their economic and political life. War is never very pretty.

Yet, somehow, civilization will probably survive. It may not be quite the same as we know it now. Modes of living may be adjusted to meet new conditions, and Europe may get its face lifted again. But life will not be summarily wiped off the planet.

The United States may as well plan on that. We may as well look beyond the yet undefinable limits of the present war and project our program for peaceful existence into a future period, even though it does look a little vague to us now.

view on morality as compared with what her parents say they think.

Then when she has a daughter 15 she won't believe she always was as cautious as she likes to remember.

She also won't be so hurt when her daughter says outright, "But Mother you just don't understand; things were different when you were young."

It would help her to be a god (that is, an absentee and non-interfering) mother-in-law if she could look at a memo she wrote herself the first year of her own marriage.

"Even when I knew she is right, I don't want my mother-in-law telling me how to avoid mistakes. I don't even want her to be good to me, for I don't like feeling eternally indebted to her."

Daughter's Marriage Makes a Difference

And when she finds herself complaining that her own parents make life hard for her by refusing to admit that marriage changes a girl's loyalties, she ought to put that in a self-addressed memo—to be read when she finds herself irritated and hurt by the way her own married children neglect her.

While she is still young she should also write a memo saying what she doesn't like about old people. That will be a memo she can make good use of if she ever finds herself living with her children—or her grand children.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Officer Flynn goes to sleep in a taxi, unaware to see Nick Smith, the taxi driver, he was hunting, going into a lunch-stand. He forces Smith to lead him to Ari Johnson, make her as she prepares to leave town.

CHAPTER VIII

PATROLMAN DAN FLYNN headed his two charges into Benithorne's study—the sullen, mumbly taxi driver and the calm, self-possessed girl. Nick was terrified—alternately begging and threatening. There was no fear in the dark eyes of the girl. She met Captain Dawson's stare defiantly as she entered the room, and he realized that bluff and threats would never break down her will.

As he studied her, Dawson compared her with Helen Benithorne. Where Helen Benithorne was soft, the pampered daughter of society, this girl was hard—not unpleasantly so—but because life had not been generous to her. Her hands were not soft, nor faultlessly manicured. Her dress was simple, serviceable, only moderately attractive. Here was a girl, Dawson realized, who worked for all she had, who had never known luxuries.

"She was just leaving the apartment when I got there," Flynn explained. "Grips packed and all. But she won't say where she was going or why. She won't say anything, Captain. Maybe you can make her talk."

"YOUR luck is holding, Flynn," Dawson laughed, when Flynn had recounted the story of his discovery of Nick Smith. "You're the only man on the force who can go to sleep and wake up with his prisoner in his hands."

"Now here is something else for you—find out all you can about Benithorne. As soon as the brokerage offices open, start tracing his business operations, back to his first purchase of stock. Get all the help you need. We've got to find out some more about Benithorne and this 'Big Red' he mentions in the note. See what you can dig up." He turned to the girl and the taxi driver.

"Well, Miss Johnson, perhaps you'll be able to help us clear up a few things."

there was no merriment in her eyes. "Just because your patrolman is clumsy is no fault of mine. I think the driver's foot slipped off the clutch pedal; then, when we saw the officer trying to draw his gun, we hurried away. I'm sure Mr. Douglas was not far away. After all, Captain, we had done nothing but ask where we might find a minister."

The girl knew the answers, Dawson realized. She would leave no openings—now. As long as she and Smith, Joey, Mrs. Benithorne and Alston were here in the house, there was no hurry. Dawson realized. Sometimes these murders almost solved themselves. Just be patient, Dawson told himself, and something will break. Aloud he said:

"I could do with some breakfast, and I imagine all of you could eat, too. If you'll wait here, I'll round out the butter and see what we can find."

BREAKFAST was a cold, silent affair. Helen Benithorne sat at one end of the long table, endeavored to be at least a considerate hostess. Her eyes were still red, and Dawson knew she had not slept. If she felt hatred for these strangers grouped about her, she did not show it.

Only once, Dawson remembered, did her fixed expression change. That was when he had introduced Ari Johnson. Watching both the women closely, Dawson thought he caught a flash of anger in Helen Benithorne's eyes as she spoke v-the girl. But Ari had remained as sphinx-like as ever.

Dawson glanced around the table. He sat at Mrs. Benithorne's right, directly across from a vacant chair. Alston was still asleep. Ari sat beside him, and Nick Smith next to her. The girl's food was practically untouched. Smith's appetite seemed to have vanished, too. Only Joey di Torino, across the table, and Krone, seemed to be enjoying the meal.

How about Ari? If Dawson could have known fear, he would have been afraid of the girl. She was almost too calm, too quiet. Was all this part of her plan?

Not finding an answer, Dawson attacked his ham and eggs.

JOHN DOUGLAS pounded hard on the Benithorne front door. Halfless, his lie asked, he gasped for breath as Jameson, ever placid, answered.

"Is Miss Ari Johnson here?" he demanded, pushing past the butler.

"I—I don't know—I'll ask Captain Dawson," Jameson began.

"A young girl, with dark hair, dark eyes. Did a policeman bring her here?" Douglas shouted. "Out of my way—I'll see for myself!"

He hurried toward the study. "You'll find all of them in the dining room, to your left, at the end of the hall," Jameson ventured. Douglas ran past the study, without a glance, to the dining room door.

"Ari!"

The girl jumped to her feet at the sound of his voice. In another second she was in his arms.

"Darling, darling," Douglas was whispering in her ear. "I had to find you. I was afraid. When I found you were gone. . . . Ari, darling, I'll never let you go again. Why didn't you call me?" She tried to stop the flow of words, and failing, finally kissed him full on the mouth. His arms crushed her to him.

"Keep quiet, fool," she whispered anxiously as she broke free at last.

Dawson smiled as he watched them. He had missed nothing, not even the angry whisper at the last. Here was his break; the chance he had been awaiting.

He waited until the youth, his arm still around the girl, turned to face him.

"I'm sorry to break in like this," Douglas apologized. "I just had to find Ari. When they said at the apartment that she had gone with a policeman—I—I—" he concluded lamely.

"Just how, young man, did you know Miss Johnson would be here, in Arnold Benithorne's house?" Dawson asked slowly.

Douglas paled. He was trapped. (To Be Continued.)

Leaf Burning

I swept the fallen leaves up yesterday.
And touched them with slow fire;
And as I saw smoke rise and drift away
I knew a keen desire
To sweep my mind of old things lying there:
Dreams long since dead
Hopes that have clung like leaves on boughs now bare.
And tears that I have shed,
I long to gather every little grief
Left scattered round,
Small doubts and fears, and lay them

in a sheaf
On fire, smoke crowned;
Then stir the embers so a laughing wind
Might lift the ashes of old praise and blame
And bear them far away leaving my mind
Clean as if swept by fire. —Selected

Tabernacle Service Is Entering on Its Final Week Here

The revival meeting at the Hope Gospel Tabernacle has now entered into the final week. The largest crowds yet to attend the meetings are attending this last week, Pastor Hamill states.

Wednesday night a large congregation heard Evangelist William F. McPherson deliver a sermon of the "Conversion of Zacharias." Pointing out that many people like Zacharias are up various trees. He turned some of them, the Educational Tree, the Devotional Tree, the Good Works Tree. The evangelist declared that however good and worthwhile education, church membership, good works, are they are not the means by which men are saved. "You do not do good works in order to be saved, you do good works because you are saved. You are saved by His grace and that not of yourselves," he said.

It is expected that Thursday night will be a great service. The Rev. and Mrs. R. C. (Keech) Jones, singers and musicians from El Dorado are to be in the meeting Thursday night. Other singers and musicians will also participate in the program.

The Friday Music Club will hold its regular meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. C. Butler, 415 North Hervey street, with Mrs. Dick Watkins as joint hostess. The Choral Club will meet promptly at 2:30 followed by the Study at 3:30. The program will be Ethelbert Nevin's Selections.

Nazis Fear Longer Line of Defenses

Attacking Holland, Belgium Would Double Length of Defense

MORGAN M. BEATTY
If the German army attempts to flank the Maginot line by a drive through Holland and Belgium, military strategists figure the odds are at least 4 to 1 against success.

But if it invades the low countries merely to drive a wedge part way between the French and the English, and to establish air and submarine bases closer to the British isles—the chances of succeeding, temporarily, anyway, are better than 2 to 1.

About that wedding operation — Military men say the flooding of Holland's dikes would in itself offer little opposition, for the Germans would not use the flooded area unless it were frozen.

Defenders Would Flank Back. Instead, their main thrust could be made through southern Holland close to the Belgian border and probably would parallel that border, turning at some point on the Albert canal defense system set up by Belgium.

Auxiliary operations might be launched elsewhere through Belgium, Luxembourg, and France.

Militating against the German customary mud of late fall in the lowlands and the efforts of the Belgian and Dutch armies, supported by the English air force.

With the few countries using their defense systems merely to delay the Germans, the defenders' main forces would drop back to the Franco-Belgian international line joining there the English forces now massing in the fortifications already prepared by the French army.

That's why strategists figure the German wedding operation would be successful. And if Hitler didn't want to try it on so large a scale, he could make his thrust through northern Holland, and work slowly down the coast, establishing submarine and air bases on the way. The flooded Dutch defense system then would offer the German's left flank ample protection against attack from the very forces that loosed the flood.

Suicide Again? Flanking the Maginot line is a horse of another color.

Strategists argue that the British, Belgium, and Dutch armies, bolstered by occasional French reserve divisions, should be able to hold the Germans at the Franco-Belgian border.

Then, before the invaders got a chance to organize communications and supply lines, all of the defending forces, including the main French army along the Maginot line, could launch a counter attack.

The Germans would then be fighting along a line twice as long as the Maginot-Siegfried line and half of that front, or nearly 200 miles of it, would offer them no fortified zone of protection.

Such a line, military men argue,

O'Brien and Hall Leading Passers

Hall Is Setting the Pace Among Pro Football Flingers

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Parker Hall and Davey O'Brien, two young fellows who learned their football in the Southland, are out in front of the sharp-shooting pack for the National Football League forward passing championship for this season.

Parker, Cleveland Rams and from Mississippi, is setting the pace down the homestretch. However, L. J. Davey, Philadelphia Eagles and TCU, is finishing the same sensational form that made him the nation's No. 1 college forward passer last year. O'Brien doing even better. He's scoring aerial records for the cash-and-carry league, which is cluttered up with players who toss the pikakin with accuracy of big league baseball pitchers.

Closely pursuing the leaders are a pair of other gems with Southern drawl, Sammy Baugh, Washington Redskins and TCU, and Ace Parker, Brooklyn Dodgers and Duke. The National League features the aerial attack. In that it is simply following another old Southern custom. Each of the pro circuit's ten clubs possesses at least two high-stretch drive the aerial bombers are led by two rookies—Hall and O'Brien. That spectacle is something new in the league's history.

From the outset of championship hostilities early last October, Hall captured first position in the passing department and tenaciously withstood the challenges of brilliant freshmen and grizzled veterans like Ed Danowski, New York Giants and 1938 league passing titleholder.

Last season Hall, triple-threat star for Mississippi, won reward on some All American eleven. This year in the tougher professional competition Hall has surpassed his best college efforts.

In his first few games with the Eagles O'Brien fared poorly. On November 12, at Philadelphia against the Green Bay Packers, one of the most aerial-minded teams in the league, he suddenly found all his passing skill. He nearly passed the Packers right out of the ball park. In 34 attempts Davey completed 19 passes, a new mark for the league.

The following week at Chicago, O'Brien bettered his own mark with 21 completions which also tied the league mark for the most passes ever thrown by any team in one game. If the little Texan maintains his dizzy pace he'll not only be the 1939 passing champion but a record breaker to boot.

The last league passing crown wear-

Here's How an Expert Carves That Bird

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Let's face it. The man of the house must carve the Thanksgiving turkey. To stand or to sit is the big question. Well, better stand unless you are a past master at the art.

Be sure the turkey is placed on the platter with breast bone toward the carver. That's rule No. 1 according to William A. Dennison, carving expert. Cut off the leg first, separating it from the bird by cutting down through skin next to body and by twisting leg upward and outward.

Cut apart upper and lower parts of leg at joint, twisting the drumstick slightly to enable knife to cut through. Remove bone from dark meat of upper leg and carve meat into slices, cutting downward and at an angle.

Now for carving the white meat of the breast. Mr. Dennison says it is important to make a deep incision into the side of the bird just above the wing bone and at right angles to the breast bone. Then carve the breast downward and outward from the bone as far as the deep incision made before you start slicing.

Use Sharp Knife, Large Platter

For each new slice of the breast, the knife starts a little higher on the breast. Serve slices of white and dark meat in equal proportions. Your knife must be as sharp as a razor, the platter large enough for free movement and you should have extra warm plates nearby on which to lay the slices of turkey as carved.

To keep the turkey fast to the platter, use four ingenious little aluminum pins that "anchor" it to the platter.

These small suction cups are pressed on the platter so that the pins will be inserted along the backbone of the turkey. When the bird is placed on the platter, they are invisible in use, cost a dollar for four and save tempers and tablecloths.

1940 Porker Grid Card Announced

Schedule Is Complete Except Opening Game at Fayetteville

FAYETTEVILLE.—Three games at Fayetteville and one at Little Rock are on the schedule for the University of Arkansas football team next year, Boyd Cypert, business director of athletics announced.

The schedule is complete except for the opening game which will be played in Fayetteville. The Porkers will play four non-conference opponents. Two Thanksgiving Day games are scheduled, one with Fordham in New York city on the first Thanksgiving Day, November 21, and Tulsa on the second Thanksgiving Day, November 28.

Mr. Cypert said officials in Oklahoma had told him that they did not intend to observe Thanksgiving Day a week earlier next year, while the New York officials plan to follow President Roosevelt in celebrating a week earlier.

Here's where the master carver really "goes to town." A noted carver, William A. Dennison, shows you how to slice large pieces of white meat from the breast with an expert's finesse. A sharp knife and a steady hand are the only requisites. The knife moves outward and downward to a deep incision just above the wing. Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi Teams to Play at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Plans were announced here for a charity All-Star high school game on December 31 between a team of West Tennessee seniors and squad of Arkansas and Mississippi prepsters.

The Shrine, announcing it would sponsor the contest in Crump Stadium to raise funds for the Crump Child-Crer's Hospital, said Harry McFar of Old Miss would coach the Arkansas-Mississippi team and Ed Kubale of Southwestern the Tennessee outfit.

The two teams will be selected within the next two weeks through a poll of all football coaches of accredited high school teams in Arkansas, Mississippi and West Tennessee. John Waterman, in charge of arrangements for the game, said:

"Fourteen players will be chosen from Arkansas, 14 from Mississippi and 25 from West Tennessee," he said. "Only seniors will be eligible."

Waterman said Bobby Cifers, Kingsport, Tenn., high scoring star and one of the nation's outstanding backs the past two years, would be asked to participate although his school is in East Tennessee.

Yerger Is Pointing for Football Title

Victory Over Conway Here Friday Puts Tigers "In the Money"

When the Yerger High School football team meets Conway here Friday afternoon it will mean the end of the high school football careers of 11 Yerger players and a chance for the Yerger team to meet Pine Bluff for the state title in Pine Bluff November 29, provided that Hope defeats the Conway team.

Both Yerger and Pine Bluff are undefeated and unscathed on this season, and the Conway team having lost only one game this season promises Yerger plenty of competition.

This will be the last game to home for the Yerger team this season, and the team has been through stiff practices for the past two weeks.

The Yerger squad had an open date on the 17th after defeating Minden, La., 20-0, on the 10th of this month. The probable lineup for Yerger will be:

Paul Grady, right end	169
John Williams, right tackle	179
Rosecoe Greene, right guard	165
Chester Wright, center	152
Ashelee Kowitz, left guard	160
Calvin Coleman, left tackle	182
J. S. Webb, left end	162
Edward Poindeexter, quarter	172
David Shaw, fullback	190
Link Curritan, right half	168
Jewel Stuart, left half	160
Reserve Players
Delmar Carson	190
Charles Shaw	160
Chester Yerger	164

Milk Provided in Schools Serves as Nutrient as Well as Relaxation

This is the first of two articles on drinks for children.

Parents of today are constantly being advised by all types of agencies as to what kinds of drinks they should provide for their children with meals, in school or as simple refreshment. Many schools are already giving children milk at noon, or in the middle of either, her morning or afternoon session.

Recently the director of health and physical education of the East Orange, N. J., public schools, disclosed a study of beverages used by children and brought to light some useful information for every parent.

In the East Orange schools, each child was provided with a drink of milk at one of the periods mentioned. He was usually given graham crackers as well, because it was felt that milk and crackers provided not only nutritional benefits, but relaxation as well.

The child from the underprivileged home was assured of at least one glass of milk a day, with the useful minerals, vitamins and proteins, other children had their diets supplemented.

An inquiry made among teachers in charge of school lunchrooms, revealed that the school systems are urged by outsiders to promote milk, chocolate drinks, orangeade, orange crush, orange juice, grapefruit juice, pineapple juice, prune juice, grape juice, and tomato juice. Moreover, in some sections of the country efforts are also made to promote carbonated beverages with ordinary flavors, as well as special carbonated beverages enriched with caffeine.

Certain standards obviously should be provided to enable teachers to know what to select. Any drinks provided through public agencies should certainly contain desirable elements for the growing child, and if the product is a milk product it should conform with all sanitary regulations relative to the quality of the milk.

Another advantage would be in having material which will be useful in teaching sound nutrition. It is important to consider the cost and to make certain the drink contains the proper amount of nutrient elements for the money spent.

NEXT: Food value in chocolate milk and other drinks for children.

Aged Hempstead Negro Found Dead in Pasture

Augustus Ross, 82-year-old Hempstead negro, was found dead late Wednesday afternoon in a pasture in the Rocky Mount community. He had been dead several hours.

Coroner J. H. Weaver viewed the body and said Ross came to his death from natural causes and that no inquest would be necessary.

The negro lived alone in the Rocky Mount community. He had no family.

It is believed that he was walking through the pasture and fell dead.
